Who Are We?

ABOUT US

Ondokuz Mayıs University Faculty of Veterinary Medicine is an educational institution that trains successful veterinarians with its deep-rooted history and high-quality teaching staff. Our Faculty, established in 1995, includes 45 professors, 24 associate professors, 11 assistant professors, 3 PhD research assistants, 31 research assistants, and 498 students currently enrolled in the Faculty.

What About Our Qualifications and Academic Vision?

Our faculty members have sufficient knowledge, are productive, and can keep up with current developments and develop solutions, and we aim to train veterinarians with the same level of expertise. Our Faculty adheres to the principle of developing projects that will aid in the country's development, conducting original research, and providing environmentally friendly services to meet the needs of society.

In 2021 alone, our Faculty, which has the region's only animal hospital, examined over 20,000 animals and performed 953 operations. Our hospital's operations are continued with four modern operating rooms, two radiology units, six patient care rooms, small animal vaccination rooms, six isolation units, two wild animal rehabilitation departments, nine intensive care cabinets, two endoscopy units, and two ultrasound units, and routine biochemistry laboratories.

What are Faculty Facilities and Students' Achievements?

It is the only veterinary Faculty in the Black Sea Region that offers education. Our Faculty, which has received educational accreditation, is one of the top five preferred among Turkey's 33 veterinary faculties. Our Faculty distinguishes itself by having experienced and competent academic staff, as well as adequate infrastructure and application units. Almost all of our Faculty's departments offer postgraduate education programs.

What Are Our Programs and Job Opportunities?

Thanks to the advantages they have acquired since graduating, our students can work as veterinarians in public and private institutions.

What Exchange Programs Do We Offer to Our Students?

Our Faculty has strong international exchange and cooperation programs like Erasmus, Farabi, and Mevlana, and educational opportunities are provided in the countries and institutions with which our university has bilateral agreements. Opportunities to improve language skills are provided through student exchange programs.

In What Ways Do We Support the Professional, Cultural, and Social Atmosphere?

Our Faculty actively promotes and encourages student professional development. All livestock operations and pet owners in the local context receive round-the-clock assistance from our staff. In this regard, various protocols have been signed with municipalities. Service is provided to the entire region in this context. Necessary steps are being taken in our region to improve livestock activities. The region contributes significantly to livestock activities through business visits and collaboration with breeders' associations.

Furthermore, student communities are crucial for students' cultural and social development. There are two types of community structures classified into professional and social categories within the body of the Directorate of Health, Culture and Sports at our university. Professional communities are faculty-specific, whereas social communities are more general. So far, our students have participated in a wide range of community activities and organizations. In addition, our university offers the institutional basis required to foster the environment that will support the cultural growth of our students through social communities working in 93 sectors ranging from chess to cycling.
